

AbstractMethod for handling IN calls

The invention is based on the object of specifying a method for handling IN calls, which allows IN service call number portability to be provided without any additional capacity requirements for the switching centers or the IN service platforms in the public telephone network. This object is made possible by a method having the NP server according to the invention.

Figures 1 and 2

P 00000000000000000000000000000000